OUT FOR LONG.

Republicans of His State Cheer His Name.

Strong Endorsement of McKinley in the Platform.

BOSTON, April 26.—It was the turn of the Republicans of Massachusetts today to select delegates at large and alternates to represent them at the national convention at Philadelphia. While the choice of delegates was the principal business to come up for action, yet probably the most important feature of the day was the declaration in favor of the nomination of Hon. John D. Long, Secretary of the Navy, for Vice President of the republic. That there was only one opinion in regard to the endorsement of the distinguished Hingham man was plainly apparent during the address of Congressman Frederick H. Gillett of Springfield, the chairman. The first mention of Secretary Long's name produced a storm of applause, spontaneous and prolonged. The platform, another interesting feature of the convention, supports Mr. Long for the nomination.

In order not to offend Senator Hoar and Congressman McCall, the new possessions of the United States were not mentioned specifically in the resolutions. They, however, declare strongly for the retention of all insular possessions. The development of local self-government is favored. The other features of the platform are a strong endorsement of President McKinley and the administration, a declaration for the gold standard and a flexible currency, a clause in favor of the building of the Isthmian canal and the laying of a Pacific cable, a resolve for the upbuilding of the merchant marine, and a plank against trusts.

It was a few minutes after 11 o'clock when the delegates were called to order in Music hall by Colonel A. H. Goetting of Springfield, chairman of the state committee. At that hour all the delegates here were in their seats, and there was quite a sprinkling of spectators in the galleries and corridors. The convention was as largely attended as the average regular state assembly of Republicans.

Many of those who were present to take part in the deliberations were members of the legislature, which, being in session, gave them an opportunity to take up the convention work in connection with their duties at the state house. So general, in fact, was the choice of members of the legislature as delegates that the morning session of the house was postponed.

The leaders of the party were early at the hall. A band played popular airs in one of the galleries before the opening and at intervals during the proceedings. The decorations were very profuse, the national colors being seen on every hand, while the many party leaders who occupied seats on the platform had behind them a stand of flags.

Colonel Goetting shortly after 11 o'clock requested Secretary Standish to read the call. Prayer was offered by Rev. Charles H. Puffer of Salem. Colonel Goetting and Secretary Standish were chosen temporary officers of the convention, on motion of Major Gould of Boston, and Chairman Goetting addressed the convention.

At the conclusion of his remarks Henry B. Turner of Malden, chairman of the committee on credentials, reported that, of the 1806 delegates entitled to seats, 1,254 were present. Hon. Charles T. Gallagher, chairman of the committee on permanent organization, reported the full list of officers, headed by Hon. Frederick H. Gillette of Springfield as chairman. A committee was appointed to escort Mr. Gillette to the platform and after the applause which greeted him had subsided the Congressman began his address.

While Chairman Gillette's remarks were frequently interrupted by applause, the enthusiasm first became general at the mention of the name of Charles H. Allen as the new governor of Porto Rico. The applause was redoubled and prolonged when, a moment later, the name of John D. Long was given to the convention as a candidate for the Vice Presidency. As the rest of the speech was practically a warm endorsement of McKinley and Long, nearly every sentence came to a conclusion amid cheers.

The platform was then presented by Attorney General Knowlton, chairman of the committee on resolutions, and was as follows:

"The Republicans of Massachusetts reaffirm their unwavering adherence to the principles set forth in the platform adopted by the national convention of 1896. The Republican party has never found it necessary to change its principles or to shift its policy. It came back to power in 1896 on the very platform upon which it had met defeat in 1892, and the condition and progress of the country during the present administration has furnished another proof of the proposition so often before demonstrated—that Republican rule stands for growth and prosperity, while Democratic rule has invariably resulted in stagnation and adversity.

"Every position maintained in that platform has been adhered to; every pledge has been kept. Cuba has been set free and Spanish dominion in America has come to an end. The monetary system of the nation has been put upon a sound and uniform gold basis. The sectional and unjust tariff laws of the last administration have been replaced by legislation adequate to the protection of American labor and the development of American business.

"We especially congratulate the country upon the rejection of free silver coinage and the endorsement of the gold standard. The promise made by the Republican party, in its national platform of 1896, to 'favor all measures designed to maintain inviolable the obligations of the United States' has been kept by the passage of an act declaring and confirming the gold standard, and giving the executive department authority to maintain it under all conditions.

"The Republican party pledges itself to support such amendments to the banking laws as will provide a flexible and sufficient expenditure of horses [illegible] had exceeded all the estimates and [illegible] the war office had invariably exceeded the requisitions from South Africa. The difficulty in procuring ships had handicapped the authorities, but already this year they had sent out 27,011 horses and 17,143 mules as remounts, in addition to those accompanying the troops, and by the end of May remounts delivered would number 42,000 horses and 23,000 mules. Steps had also been taken to supply the necessary rolling stock for the railroads.

But, so far as the government was aware, the military problem before Lord Roberts had not turned on the question of remounts or rolling stock, but on the fact that Lord Roberts had shifted his base from Cape Town to Bloemfontein, thus necessitating the recapturing and repair of the railroad and the clearing of the line of communications for a distance of 750 miles on a single track with a rise of 4,500 feet.

Regarding the relief of Mafeking, which all had at heart, the secretary said the House would realize that speedy relief would not be aided by divulging the objective of any of Lord Roberts's forces. Mr. James Lowther, Conservative, was heartily cheered when he gave notice that he would call attention May 22 to Lord Roberts's recent Spion kop despatches and move the production of further papers on the subject.

BOERS ON THE RUN.

Rundle Pursuing Them by Forced Marches.

LONDON, April 26.—A special despatch from Dewetsdorp, dated yesterday, says:

Owing to the approach of General French and to General Rundle's persistent shelling, the Boers relinquished their positions last night, retiring, with their guns, in a northeasterly direction. Generals French and Rundle joined hands east of Dewetsdorp this morning. General Rundle is pursuing the Boers in forced marches.

FRENCH IN DEWETSDORP.

Six Thousand Burghers Avoid an Attack in the Rear.

DEWETSDORP, April 25.—General French entered this town today with two cavalry brigades. He left camp at daylight and found the Boers holding the hills. These were shelled, and the Boers retreated. The cavalry pushed around the position of the Boers above the town, where they were holding General Rundle in check. It is reported that 6,000 Boers passed through the town last night in order to avoid General French's attack in the rear.

STRIPPED AND FLOGGED.

Native Women Captured by Boers While Escaping from Mafeking.

LONDON, April 26.—The war office has received the following message from Lord Roberts:

"Bloemfontein, April 25. Good news from Baden-Powell up to April 10. MacLaren much better. All the wounded doing well. The Boers captured several native women, who were trying to escape from Mafeking, but these were turned back after being stripped and sjambokked."

The "sjambok" referred to is a whip made of rhinoceros hide, or other leather, usually carried by the Boers.

BOER MAGAZINE WRECKED.

Ten Workmen Killed and 32 Injured by an Explosion at Pretoria.

PRETORIA, April 25. A serious explosion occurred at the Begbie works, [illegible] by the government as an arsenal, last night. The walls of the building were destroyed and the structures in the neighborhood are a mass of flames. The shrieks of women and children in the adjoining streets added to the ghastliness of the scene.

Ten workmen were killed and 32 injured, including Herr Grunberg, the manager of the works. The most important of the machinery was saved. The cause of the explosion is unknown. The works employed 200 persons; mostly French and Italians. The Red Cross ambulance did good work in helping the wounded.

Further particulars from Johannesburg show that the explosion occurred in a magazine containing smokeless powder, on the opposite side of the street from the Begbi works, used by the government as an arsenal. Thirteen of the occupants of the latter building were blown to pieces and 45 were injured.

Another batch of British subjects, consisting of 10 men, 263 women and 429 children have been put over the border and are going to Delagoa bay.

ESCAPING UNBEATEN.

Boers Slip Off After Doing an Immense Amount of Damage.

LONDON, April 26.—All the interest in the South African war is now centred in the running fight in progress between the burghers retreating from the southern portion of the Orange Free State and General French's horsemen and the infantry of Generals Pole-Carew, Chermside and Rundle. But the British hope of conclusive results is slim at present, the Boers escaping unbeaten and having accomplished an immense amount of damage. They cling to their positions as long as it was safe to do so, and they have now slipped off to hold the next commanding ridge through a broken country admirably suited for a rear guard defense.

Despatches from Aliwal North, under date of Wednesday, April 25, say the Boers left Wepener so hurriedly that many of the dead were left in the trenches unburied, Commandant S. Cronje is reported to have been killed.

According to advices from Bloemfontein, the attempt of the Boers at Brandfort to get in touch with the command at Thabanchu was frustrated by a force despatched by General Tucker from Glen.

ROBERTS'S PROBLEM.

Turns Not on Remounts or Rolling Stock, But Change of Base.

LONDON, April 26.—In the House of Commons, which re-assembled today, Mr. George Wyndham, parliamentary secretary of the war office, replying to questions, declares that Lord Roberts had made no comment whatever on General Methuen's Magersfontein operations. Neither, he continued, did Lord Roberts's despatches indicate that the advance was either retarded or modified by the scarcity of remounts. At the same time, the secretary declared, it was true that the Movement an Attempt to Degrade Ministers of Foreign Treaty Powers.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 26.—Steamer Empress of China brings news to the effect that an attempt is being made in China to abolish the Tsung Li Yamen and to entrust all foreign relations to the Li Fan Yuat, commonly termed the Mongolian superintendency, but really meaning the colonial and tributary department. This is said to be a thinly veiled attempt to relegate once more the ministers of foreign treaty powers to the grade of tribute bearers.

Queen Victoria Leaves Ireland Amid Prolonged Cheers.

DUBLIN, April 26.—Queen Victoria and Princesses Christiana and Henry of Battenberg left the vice-regal lodge at noon and drove to Kingsbridge station on their way to Kingstown and England. Large crowds at every point of vantage gave Her Majesty a loyal farewell.

The train started for Kingstown at 12:30 amid the heartiest demonstrations. Enormous numbers of people had preceded the queen to Kingstown and occupied the piers and other places from which royal yacht Victoria and Albert was visible. A memorable demonstration occurred as Her Majesty, attended by a brilliant suite, boarded the yacht, which steamed seaward at 1:15 p. m. amid the firing of a royal salute by the fleet and hearty and prolonged cheering from the throngs lining the water side.

HAS NOT DROPPED SILVER.

Bryan Expects to Continue to Oppose the Gold Standard.

NEW YORK, April 26. In view of recent published statements of an alleged interview with W. J. Bryan, in which he was quoted as having relegated free silver to the background as an issue, the Journal and Advertiser today prints the following telegram from Mr. Bryan:

"The report is not correct. I was shown a despatch, saying that Editor Morse had persuaded me to drop silver, and was asked whether it was true. I replied that I had not dropped silver. I have never said that other questions were more important than the money question. I have said many times, and now repeat, that at present three questions—money, trusts and imperialism—are dividing public opinion. Men differ as to their relative importance, but I have never attempted to fix their relative importance. The Republicans are wrong on all their questions and I expect to continue to oppose the gold standard, the trusts and imperialism."

This Morning's News.

WEPENER RELIEVED.

Announced Officially in London Late Last Night.

LONDON, April 25.—At 11 o'clock tonight the war office officially announced that Wepener has been relieved.

A Cape Town despatch says the relief of Colonel Dalgety was accomplished by General Brabant.

Late this evening the war office posted the following despatch from Lord Roberts, dated at Bloemfontein at 3:25 p. m. today:

"The enemy retired from in front of Wepener last night, and this morning fled northeastward along the Ladybrand road. Their number was between 4,000 and 5,000."

A Pretoria despatch, dated yesterday, says the Boers have reoccupied Boshof, the British retiring.

A despatch to the Times from Mafeking, Basutoland, says:

"I rode from Jammerbergs here, skirting Wepener, and met General Brabant's advance guard four miles south of Wepener. They report three successful fights, Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday, with 22 casualties.

"The siege was raised and 5,000 of the enemy retired along the Ladybrand road, within our sight, and unpursued. Colonel Dalgety's casualties are 33 killed and 132 wounded."

A despatch to the Times from Dewetsdorp, says General Rundle arrived there this morning.

The Lourenzo Marquez correspondent of the Times, telegraphing Tuesday, says:

"It is asserted that the Boers are collecting enormous quantities of provisions at depots in the Lydenburgh district, with a view to a final stand in the mountains. The districts around Johannesburg and Pretoria are being extensively entrenched. Begbie's foundry at Johannesburg is turning out 700 shells a day."

A despatch from Warrenton says: "The Boers having been shelling the village, and the British trenches, Colonel Paget placed several guns on the river bank, Monday night, under cover of the darkness, within 1,000 yards of the Boer trenches across the river. The horses and carriages were withdrawn beyond range, and at daybreak the British opened a heavy bombardment with shrapnel and lyddite.

"The Boers, although taken completely by surprise, replied with five guns, including a 9-pounder. A heavy rifle fire was opened at the same time.

"The duel continued many hours, the Boers finally evacuating the position, with, it is believed, considerable loss. There were no casualties on the British side.

"During the evening the guns were safely withdrawn. The sniping today showed that the Boer lagger had been removed far back to the eastward."

A despatch to the Daily Mail from Lourenzo Marquez says: "A daring attempt to destroy the bridge at Komatiport Sunday night was frustrated by Kaffirs, who gave the alarm and frightened the Boers.

"The Boers have fired all the hills in the vicinity with riflemen, fearing an attack by British troops advancing by some mysterious route.

"The Irish American brigade, chiefly so-called 'undesirable men,' left Pretoria Sunday under Colonel Blake, after being addressed by President Kruger, to which the men responded with an American college cheer. The Boers assert that Lord Roberts is waiting for 20,000 horses. No serious fighting is expected until the end of May."

A despatch to the Daily Mail from Kimberley says:

"Yesterday the Boers formed a new laager near Windsorton. The force there consists of Prinska, Campbell and Griqualand rebels, about 500 strong."

CAUGHT IN A CORNER.

Eighty Filipinos Killed in a Fight in South Camarines.

MANILA, April 25. Officers who have arrived here from Nueva Caceres, province of South Camarines, bring details of a fight on the 16th inst., in which 80 Filipinos were killed.

The American outposts reported 2,000 natives assembled three miles from the town, and General Bell sent three detachments of the Forty-fifth regiment, with two Maxims, who nearly surrounded the Filipinos, the majority of whom were armed with bolos, and wore hide helmets, coats and shields. The Filipinos were quickly put to flight. Their riflemen were unable to shoot straight, and the bolomen never got near enough to the Americans to do any execution. Therefore, none of the Americans were wounded.

Lieutenant Balch, with 20 cavalrymen from the Thirty seventh regiment, cornered 50 bolomen in a river, and shot every one. One soldier had his head struck 0 with a bolo.

General Bell's two regiments are hard at school in clearing the country. They meet with many small squads of bolomen, and last week killed 125. A squadron of the Eleventh cavalry is about leaving Manila, on board transport Lawton, to reenforce them. The insurgents keep the province in a state of terror, and are wreaking vengeance on natives who trade with the Americans, burning many villages, including the populous town of San Fernando.

General Bell has issued a proclamation declaring that he will retaliate relentlessly unless this guerilla war ceases, and that he will burn all the towns which harbor guerillas.

In a fight at Sorsogon, Albay province, on the 16th inst., three companies of the Forty-seventh infantry, Captain Gordon commanding, routed a large force of insurgents, mostly bolomen, killing 53.

General Otis's plans have not been announced, but it is understood that he intends settling on the Meanle or the Grand early in May.

FOLLOWED HANNA.

Ohio Republicans Adopt the Platform and the Slate.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 25. Everything went Senator Hanna's way in the Republican state convention today. That means that the administration slate and platform were forced through without a break, with the possible exception that the Hanna men were compelled to accept an anti-trust plank, which had been omitted from the platform Representative Grosvenor brought with him from the White House. The committee on resolutions fought over it all night. The declaration is not hostile to trusts already in existence only to "threatening combinations of capital."

The opposition tried twice to keep Mr. Hanna from putting Mr. Grosvenor in as one of the delegates to the Philadelphia convention, first by substituting Mr. Hanna's and next former Governor Foster's name for Grosvenor's. But Mr. Hanna addressed the convention, giving orders that Grosvenor's name should be left upon the slate, and Mr. Foster refused the proffer, saying that "we have a slate already made for us at Washington." He had himself selected as one of the alternates.

Senator Hanna appealed to the convention thus: "My wish is that this convention be harmonious and unanimous. I will have enough burdens upon my shoulders in connection with the national Republican convention and do not want you to add to my responsibilities. I will be there as chairman of the committee and will call the convention to order. That will be enough honor for me. What do I care what the Democratic press may have to say about me."

The platform, which is here regarded as indicating the nature of the one to be adopted at Philadelphia, endorses the "wise and patriotic administration" of President McKinley, and reaffirms the principle "that the representatives of the people have full power over territory belonging to the United States, in harmony with the subject to the fundamental safeguards of our free institutions for liberty, justice and personal rights."

It approves the conduct of the President and Congress for exercising this power, applauds the wisdom and humanity of the President in negotiating the treaty of Paris, commits the Ohio Republican party to "legislative and executive opposition to the threatening combinations of capital that seem to restrict competition and stifle independent producers," and invites capitalistic investments that are "material to the industrial development of the state and the largest employment of labor."

DID QUAY'S WILL.

Pennsylvania Convention Completely Controlled by Him.

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 25. Matthew Stanley Quay was the supreme power in the Republican state convention today, although at the Washington end of the long distance 'phones. He brought order out of a hot-tempered tempest.

Delegates were threatening divers reprisals on Messrs. McKinley and Hanna last night for ditching Quay in the Senate; but the convention did nothing rash today. It did not nominate Quay for auditor-general; it did not smother instructions for McKinley; it did not start a Roosevelt boom for first place, nor did it indorse Woodruff for second place. Quay himself was the reason why.

If the telephone had gone down, the story would be different. There was harmony, therefore, between Quay and the administration, but the harmony was far below zero. Senator Penrose represented Quay in the convention. Quay's machine resembles Platt's machine in that it does convention work swiftly and dexterously. It differs today from Platt's machine in that it controlled about 71 per cent of the delegates, whereas Platt, the other day, on every vote controlled them all.

The convention completed its work in four hours. In that time it nominated J. E. Hardenburg, an Erie railroad conductor, of Wayne county, to be auditor general, a position corresponding with that of the comptroller of the state of New York. It nominated G. A. Grow and Robert H. Foerderer for representatives at large.

The convention elected M. S. Quay, John V. Steele, Frank Reeder, William Connell, H. W. Greene, Charles A. Porter, James Elverson and John Leisenring to be delegates-at-large to the national convention.

It put in the field a full electoral ticket. It adopted a platform endorsing the administration of President McKinley and instructing the delegates to vote for him in Philadelphia, and also in the strongest language backed up Quay's contention that he was entitled to his seat. It voted down, 69 to 28, a motion to strike out of the platform all suggestion of the endorsement of Quay, and it listened to a speech by Governor Stone, in which he predicted the re-election of McKinley.

In doing all these things, the convention avoided a single cheer for McKinley. Not a Quay delegate applauded when the President's name was mentioned. No picture of McKinley adorned the hall. Marching delegates who had badges bearing a medallion of the President went about with only the backs of the badges showing. Others went through the streets cheering, sometimes for Bryan and sometimes for Roosevelt. The only genuine applause from the delegates greeted the names of Quay and Penrose.

So far as McKinley was concerned, it was a blizzard. No disrespect was shown, no threats pervaded the proceedings. Everything that had been mapped out days ago was done—only it was done in a way that suggested a funeral.

DEWEY'S NEW WATCH.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—About six months ago Archie Cudzow of Rosemount, Minn., suggested to the Minneapolis Journal that the children of the Northwest raise money, by small subscriptions, with which to purchase a watch for Admiral Dewey. The suggestion met with favor, but it was decided to restrict the contributions to one cent each. One hundred and seventy-five newspapers of that section joined in the movement, and the names of the contributors, together with a story of the enterprise, made up from newspaper clippings and prepared in the form of a beautiful book, accompanied the watch, which was today presented to the admiral, in a neat address, by Congressman James T. McCleary.

Miss Mae H. Anson, editor of the Minneapolis Journal Junior, who conducted the raising of the fund, was present, and also Archie Cudzow, the originator of the idea, who received from the admiral a hearty expression of thanks for the beautiful tribute of their esteem from the little people of the Northwest.

The timepiece is of 22 karat gold, bearing the monogram "G. D." in gold enamel on the front of the case and the admiral's flag in blue and white enamel on the back. On the inside of the case is engraved the names of the Spanish ships destroyed in Manila harbor and the inscription: "Presented to Admiral Dewey by the children of Minneapolis and the Northwest, May 1, 1900, each donor contributing one cent."

Attached is a fob, of very unique and beautiful design, made of gold and black gun metal. The watch and the fob are made from gold, black gun metal and copper obtained from the Philippines, the gun metal and copper being from ships destroyed in Manila harbor.

In compliance with a resolution of inquiry, the Secretary of the Navy has sent to the Senate a statement showing the assignment of commissioned officers in the navy December 31 last. Of the 882 officers of the line, there were 455 on duty at sea, 305 on shore duty, 39 on leave or waiting orders, 14 on sick leave, 12 detailed to nautical school ships, and three on special duty. The statement shows one admiral who is on shore duty and 18 rear admirals, of whom 14 are on shore. Another statement gives the number of officers on duty at the navy yards, naval stations, etc., during the month of March, as 365. At that time 64 vessels were undergoing repairs at the navy yards.

THE EFFICACY OF ELECTRIC RINGS

For the prevention, alleviation and cure of diseases arising from impurities of the blood, as well as all Nervous Diseases, has long been acknowledged by the Medical Fraternity, and thousands of testimonials bear witness to the Wonderful Cure, effected by their use. We offer a Ring superior to all others, both in Magnetic properties and Appearance.

The insertion of the Electro-Magnet into rings of Gold, Silver, and other metals of intrinsic value, is an innovation that places Our Ring far in advance of all other so-called electric or magnetic rings, as the most skeptical will admit that where there is an Electro-Magnet there must be Electricity, and as we insert a Genuine Electro-STEEL-Magnet in each Ring, there can be no doubt of its Magnetic and Curative powers.

In appearance it is equal to the finest Gold or Silver Rings, and no person would suspect it was worn for Medicinal purposes. It will positively relieve and cure Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Gout, Partial Paralysis, Insomnia, and all Nervous Disorders. It purifies the blood, quickens Circulation, helps Digestion and Tones up the System. To place the Electric Ring within the reach of all we have set the price to $1.00. BAYARD TAKER ON THE QUAY CASE.

Hon. John Wanamaker, former Postmaster General and one of the leaders in Pennsylvania in the movement against Quay, is naturally very much pleased at the result of the vote in the United States Senate refusing the latter a seat on the governor's appointment. When asked if the action of the Senate means Quay's political defeat, he said: "It is the beginning of the end. Mr. Quay made a fatal blunder when he failed to see that the people were not willing that their representatives should reelect him to the Senate. He blundered again when he was willing to constitute his governor (Stone) the viceroy of the state, so that he could give him a ticket of admission to the Senate. The vote again Quay was a step forward that will lead to great consequences. It demonstrates that, with all the forces that acute and long-intrenched politicians are able to command, the Senate of the United States could not be turned from the path of duty by the men who had come there by the wrong road. * * * * *

"The people in nearly every county of Pennsylvania have been fretting and sweating under the tyranny of the Quay machine. I doubt if we have had a genuinely fair election in Pennsylvania, except in spots, for 15 years. The memory of man saveth not when Philadelphia was politically governed in a way to guarantee an honest election. But we have reached the stage where the fugitives from justice who have debauched the ballot box can be counted on the fingers of both hands. The action of the Senate has shattered the force that was supposed to be invincible, and has proved that the people are more potent than any one man."

Asked how the action of the Senate will affect Pennsylvania, he said: "Favorably. I think the action of the Senate is the result of the ground swell among the people of Pennsylvania and Montana, who have declared that they want no czars in politics. We have three Pennsylvanias. First, the one that was, when every man had to surrender his patriotic impulses to Quayism and where the people rebelled. Second, the Pennsylvania that is and which said last winter 'Hands off' to the Quay corrupt machine that had been breaking banks and trust companies and padding pay rolls, and then went to the legislature to compel the reelection of Quay. Third, the Pennsylvania that is to be, where the people are not going to permit political leaders to capitalize the worst elements of the body politic; the Pennsylvania that is going into clean politics, and which will no longer allow a political boss to use the community for his own personal advancement."

Quay's defeat, Mr. Wanamaker says, will not change the course of the Pennsylvania Republicans in the national convention. Pennsylvania is for McKinley, and whatever Quay may be inclined to do will not affect the loyalty of the party in that state to the present administration.

VARYING SOCIAL STANDARDS.

A renowned gentleman, at one time the acknowledged social leader in a section of our great country, wrote a book on "Society As I Have Found It," and to this one turns for aid in getting at established social standards in America, but in vain. The author evidently came to the conclusion that, as we have no aristocracy, using that word in an English sense, and as no city was the center of social life, we could have no universal social standards, and so he wisely got around the difficulty by making his chapters treat of such subjects as "How to please all," "Sorrel should never be flavored with rum," "My mother as an angel of beauty and charity," "Dinner with the chef of Windsor Castle," and "Madeira should be kept in a garret, and corked with a corn cob."

There are certain general rules, like those for the correct use of the knife and against the unlimited use of the teaspoon, that are supposed to meet with recognition among the well bred and well educated classes, but these are trivial matters of etiquette, and hardly to be dignified as social standards. And, again, there are customs of society in the East that are unknown to the West, and ways of the Western world not accepted by the older social sets here.

Apropos of this, there is a rumor that an American who fled his country and became a servant of the queen was driven to this step in order to preserve himself from such shocks as he received when he learned that in Chicago maid servants instead of men servants opened the front door in answer to the bell, and this in quite respectable houses, and that members of even the leading families had a way of sitting out on the steps on warm evenings, instead of remaining in the exclusive and perspiring retirement of inner rooms, with curtains drawn at street windows, and shades at proper angles, as self-respecting people did in New York.

But the West also has its ideas of what is proper. It also shows more originality and invention in living up to its standards. The advertisement that appeared some half dozen years ago in one of the magazines is a good illustration of this. It read as follows: "The Acme Monstache Guard. Solid comfort while eating. No use for napkins. Neat, simple and quickly adjusted. Does not interfere with free use of the mouth. Works perfectly. Made of gold and silver plate. Can be carried in vest pocket. Every genteel person should have one. Two sizes, large and medium. Mention size when ordering. Sold only by the Acme Novelty Co., Omaha, Neb."

The advertisement showed a picture of the instrument in action, a two fold plate fitting daintily under and over the upper lip, and held in position by strings tied at the back of the head. This little apotheosis of neatness and comfort, probably, in spite of its wide advertisement, was never appreciated beyond the confines of Nebraska. There it doubtless does all that is claimed for it, besides adding beauty to the glitter of silver and glass at sumptuous dinner tables. But, nevertheless, the East preferred napkins.

If it had appeared in London or Paris, and had been found in either of those cities to fill a genteel want as in Nebraska, all England or France would now be using the Acme monstache guard, but, with us, Nebraska is no more a social centre than any one of 50 other sections, and the customs of none will be found indicative of social standards of the country at large.

Turkey's proposals for the settlement of the American missionary claims are not satisfactory to the United States government. The trade permitting the reconstruction of the American mission at Harpoot and the extension of Robert College at Constantinople is good as far as it goes but is not enough, and the State Department has sent instructions to the American representative at Constantinople rejecting the proposal and peremptorily demanding payment for the loss suffered by Americans. In the interest of future protection for American citizens the United States must show that the wanton destruction of American property in a foreign state cannot be permitted, and Turkey will undoubtedly settle in a very short time. There will be no need of a show of arms, as the sultan knows as well as any one else that in an armed conflict with the United States he would without question be the loser, and at great cost.

The three new battleships, for which Congress made an appropriation last year and for which plans have just been finally approved, will be by far the biggest in the United States navy and equal to the largest type of British armored cruisers. They will have a displacement of 15,500 tons and a speed of 20 knots, a very unusual figure for so large craft. Their armament will be the most powerful in the world, and the best that can be made. They will be like an enlarged Iowa, a type of battleship that has been thoroughly tested. It is well to have the best and only the best, and these new boats promise to combine the most approved ideas in modern marine architecture. In addition to these ships, the naval bill now before Congress provides for two sea-going battleships, carrying the heaviest armor and most powerful armament of their class and to have the highest practicable speed and greatest radius of action.

Newfoundland is prospering in a remarkable way. Her revenues last year were the largest in the history of the colony, and there is a surplus of $100,000 with an estimated surplus of $40,000 for the next fiscal year. The government will set apart $20,000 toward the British patriotic fund, which, with individual subscriptions from all parts of the island, will represent a total colonial contribution of $50,000. Well done, Newfoundland.

Mrs. Laura M. Planz of Putney, Vt., who a few days ago announced herself as a candidate for Vice President, expressing a desire to go on the ticket with Admiral Dewey, has reconsidered and will not run. She was evidently one of those Planz that requires more nourishing than she received.

Twenty-five Republicans, five Democrats and two silverites voted to allow Quay a seat in the Senate, and 12 Republicans, 11 Democrats, four Populists, one silver Republican and one Fusionist stood up for the dignity and integrity of the Senate and against Quay.

All England is getting jealous of Queen Victoria's favors showered upon Ireland with lavish hand. Even the familiar half-penny postage stamp is about to turn green with envy.

Bowdoin College receives $150,000 from an old alumnus, Thomas M. Hubbard of New York, for a new library, and is correspondingly happy.

The children of the Northwest seem to think Admiral Dewey needs watching. The politicians have been of that opinion for some little time.

Hanna held the reins in the Ohio Republican convention and Quay was very much in evidence at Harrisburg.

THE MAGAZINES.

Among the timely articles in The Century for May is an essay by Andrew Carnegie entitled "Popular Illusions About Trusts." The writer contends that the welfare of the people is increased by trusts; also, that such aggregations of productive capital are usually short-lived. "The only people who have reason to fear trusts," he says, "are those who trust them." An editorial in the same number entitled "The Real Danger of Trusts," while agreeing with Mr. Carnegie as to the material advantages of such combinations, sets forth wherein they are a menace to the independence of the individual and the state. The sense of humor that gave piquancy to Richard Whiteing's story of social contrasts, "No. 5 John Street," is conspicuous in his treatment of "Parisian Pastimes" this month. In the second and last of his illustrated papers on "The National Zoo at Washington," Ernest Seton-Thompson dwells on the opportunities such a reservation offers wild animals to retain the habits of exercise, etc., on which their happiness and health depend. "A Word of Warning to Young Actresses" is addressed especially to would-be actresses or amateurs who have been dazzled by the glare of the footlights and fancy the stage a royal road to wealth and fame. It is an authoritative word, for it is uttered by a successful actress, Miss Clara Morris. "Significant Ignorance of the Bible" records the results of certain attempts by the author, President Thwing of Western Reserve University, to determine to what extent the Bible has ceased to be a book familiar to the average collegian of either sex. His conclusions are not reassuring to those who regard the Bible as the book of books. The "Literary Shrine," of which Professor William Knight, the Wordsworthian, writes, with illustrations by Harry Fenn, is Dove Cottage, the home of Wordsworth and De Quincey. Under the modest title, "Leaves from a Notebook," Thomas Bailey Aldrich offers a few pages that show him alternately as poet and prosaist—or rather as poet and wit. Adventure is the motive in the concluding chapter of Benjamin Wood's "Hardships of a Reporter;" and something more than mere travel sketches are to be found in "Our Friend the Sultan of Joby," by Charles B. Hugadorn, "The All-American Route to the Klondike," by Edward Gillette, and "The Maharaja's Water Carnival," by the artist-author, R. D. Mackenzie. The two leading serials—Mr. Morley's "Oliver Cromwell" and Dr. Mitchell's "Dr. North and His Friends"—maintain their interest. This number of The Century appeals to lovers of art by its frontispiece portrait of Wordsworth at 77, and its re-production of Rembrandt's "Rabbi with the White Turban;" "Art in Modern Bridges," by Montgomery Schuyler, with pictures of famous bridges, actual or proposed; Frederick Keppel's paper on Henri Fantin-Latour, with examples of his lithographs on musical motives, and Castaigne's full-page and smaller plates illustrating "Parisian Pastimes."

The May number of Everybody's Magazine is full of interesting information. The "Simple Explanation" for the month describes in plain language the working of the telephone—"one of the simplest but most sensitive contrivances known to the electrical mechanician." The series of articles on the "biggest things" in American industries is continued by a description of "The Greatest Shipyard in the World." "The Turning Point in My Career" is the title of a collection of the experiences of eight or 10 prominent stage people, telling of that moment when opportunity first reached a hand to them. "Helping the Cubans to Help Themselves" is a plain statement of a great charity, whose workings are not widely known to the public at large. It treats of the foundation and operation of the Cuban Orphan Society, which has undertaken the task of feeding and educating as many as it can of the little ones in Cuba whom the merciless decrees of Weyler left homeless, orphaned and destitute. The short stories are bright, original and good.

A PLEA FOR TREES AND PARKS IN CITIES.

The conspicuous absence of trees from the residential streets of modern New York is hard to explain. Rich men who live there only during the winter appear to take very little interest in their fellow-citizens who are compelled to remain in town all summer. In some instances, indeed, the absence of trees in front of houses situated upon the park and river fronts seems to suggest a fear on the part of the owner that foliage might obscure architecture, apparently oblivious of the fact that the beauty of a dwelling is frequently enhanced thereby. As it is, few side streets are embellished with vegetation; and even along the Boulevard—an avenue highly favored by nature—the trees are neglected. This is true also of Seventh avenue above Central Park, St. Nicholas avenue and of all other thoroughfares not placed under the jurisdiction of the park commissioners—a body which should be authorized to exercise control over every avenue upon which the preservation of the trees is desirable. Except in front of St. Luke's Hospital, Morningside Drive, which is the glory of upper New York, is today barren of trees on its western side; while on the historic King's Bridge road the few trees still remaining are sadly neglected. What must one think of a corporation that recently spent the enormous sum of $7,000,000 on the construction of the Harlem speedway, without exercising sufficient foresight to provide that fine avenue with a row of shade-trees for the protection of riders and drivers and their horses?—[Louis Windmüller, in the Forum.

MISSIONARY COMITY.

Paper Read by Rev. Dr. H. M. King of Providence.

NEW YORK, April 26.—This, the fourth day of the Ecumenical Conference, has been practically set apart for the women and is known as "Woman's day." While the men held exercises in Carnegie hall and the Central Presbyterian Church, the features of the day are the great women's mass meeting in Carnegie hall in the afternoon and the great public meeting in the same place in the evening.

At the morning session in Carnegie hall "Spirit and Limitations of Missionary Comity" was discussed by Rev. H. M. King, D. D., of Providence, R. I., chairman of the executive committee of the American Baptist Missionary Union; "Union and Co-operation Practicable and Desirable," by Rev. T. M. Lindsay, D. D., LL. D., of the Free Church of Scotland, Glasgow; "A General Summary," by Rev. Alexander Sutherland, D. D., secretary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist church in Canada. A discussion of the papers followed. Dr. King was the first speaker and said in part:

"Missionary comity is, in its essence, the spirit of Christ manifesting itself in all the forms and methods and activities of foreign evangelization, and in all the intercourse and relations of those who are seeking to prosecute it. It is an illustration of that spiritual brotherhood in a small circle which is ultimately to embrace all communities and all nations, by means of restored sonship with God, brought about by the universal triumph of the Gospel. It is the expression of that courtesy and thoughtful regard for the rights and the feelings and the convictions of others which should ever and everywhere characterize the intercourse of Christian gentlemen. The spirit of comity does not necessitate or contemplate any organic union of churches under one particular form of government or one prescribed ritual of worship. Differences in policy must be left to the decision of an intelligent and conscientious interpretation of Scripture.

"I offer suggestions for a few practical applications and proper limitations to the spirit of missionary comity. All branches of the same general church division, and all denominations in which a union could be effected without the surrender of any faith or practice that is held to be vital, ought to unite their work when prosecuted on the same mission field. It seems not only unnecessary but culpable to transplant and perpetuate divisions which have resulted from circumstances which have long since passed away or from the laying of emphasis upon unimportant matters.

"Where a field has already been taken possession of by one missionary body, that body should have the exclusive right to cultivate it, no matter how accessible and attractive the field. There should be no interference and no competition. The claims of the original settlers should be carefully acknowledged. Missionary expansion does not give the right to enter upon territory that is already pre-occupied. Great centres of population, too large for any one society to compass, and large enough for the representatives of two or more societies to enter without danger of friction, may be exempted from the operation of this rule.

"In entering upon new territory there should be an amicable division of the field, a careful and friendly drawing of the boundary lines, not for the sake of restricting missionary activity but to scatter more widely the seed of the kingdom, and of bringing more speedily under Christian cultivation the barren wastes of the heathen world. But if so be that any society, by reason of limited resources or the pressing demands of its other fields, find itself, or is found, unable to cultivate the new field, the responsibility for which it has assumed, it may ask for aid or surrender its claim. Government grants of land are conditioned upon their being occupied and improved. Missionary title is invalidated by continued neglect.

"Among missionaries of different societies occupying the same or adjacent fields there should be frequent conferences in which the interests of the common work shall be frankly and fully considered, and all matters which might lead to friction, and about which there is any possibility of misunderstanding, should be examined in the spirit of prayer. It should be understood that union and concession are to be expected only so far as they involve no surrender of truth that is conscientiously held. It is the business of comity to discover a modus vivendi, when convictions are divergent. To grant to others the same rights of conscience and of private judgment that we claim for ourselves, and still to love and honor them, and rejoice in their successes—that is comity, that is liberality, that is Christianity.

"The discipline of native churches should always be respected, and the offer of an increased stipend to native workers to secure a transfer of service should be looked upon as in the nature of a dishonorable bribe. It would be well if among missionaries of different bodies occupying the same field a uniform rate of compensation for native employes could be agreed upon, so as to avoid all temptation of an appeal to the mercenary spirit. It may be difficult to escape the peril of "rice Christians." No self-respecting missionary will seek to win helpers by the offer of pecuniary inducements, and thus lend himself to the creation of a class of rice preachers. But this suggestion has reference to those who by reason of supposed new light are led conscientiously to withdraw from the fellowship of one communion and enter into that of another, and from the service of one missionary society to engage in the service of another. How shall such cases be treated? What has missionary comity to say? Shall it demand that the society which gains a new helper shall reimburse the society which suffers loss, for the expense of outfit and passage and salary during the time of preparation and comparative inactivity? That has been thought right and equitable, though it is not easy to determine the fair amount of the reimbursement. But have we not reached that stage of Christian fellowship and that conception of the oneness of the great work in which we are engaged where such apparent losses can be looked upon as not intended indeed, but not unwilling contributions of one society to the strength and progress of a sister society?

Richardson junior lieutenant. The ensigns will probably be chosen from the list of non-commissioned officers.

cient medium of exchange, to the end that capital may obtain fair returns, that American commerce may be enlarged, and that labor may be assured of steady employment and of the largest possible share in the fruits of our expanding trade.

"The great prosperity of recent years has had a tendency to encourage combinations of capital for industrial and commercial purposes so great and unprecedented as to require the serious and careful consideration of the people of the nation. In so far as such combinations are for lawful purposes, they may not be restrained. But whenever they tend to impair the equal rights and privileges of all citizens by restraint of trade, by oppression of weaker competitors, or by enhancing the cost of the necessities of life, they become unlawful and must sternly be dealt with.

"By the treaty of Paris, a number of islands formerly held by Spain have come under the dominion of the United States, and by the terms of the treaty the duty of providing for their government and of determining the civil rights and political status of the inhabitants has devolved upon the Congress of the United States. As a result of these acquisitions, races of people have come under the protection of the American flag, who have been so long degraded by tyranny as to have very inadequate conceptions of the true spirit of liberty and of the responsibilities of self-government. No greater trust than the uplifting and educating of these defenseless people has been imposed upon the United States.

"The Republican party believes it to be the high and solemn duty of the nation to accept and execute this trust, with all the responsibilities it involves, by retaining the islands, and by providing for their adequate government upon the principles of liberty and humanity. It believes that to abandon them to local anarchy or to the lust of the invader would be cowardly and dishonorable, and a betrayal of its trust, impossible to contemplated by a great, free and enlightened nation. Not the material interests alone of the nation, whose trade and commerce are now competing for the markets of the world, but the highest dictates of duty require us to take the people of these islands under our protection, to suppress disorder and violence to restore peace, to dispel the darkness and ignorance, to promote industry, to teach them the duties and responsibilities of local self-government, to secure to them civil and religious liberty, and by these means to establish order and civilization in place of anarchy and barbarism. Not trade alone, but liberty and civilization as well have always followed the flag."

The resolutions favor the construction of an isthmian canal, the laying of a Pacific cable and reasonable protection to American shipping.

"In conclusion, the Republicans of Massachusetts give their hearty and unqualified endorsement to the administration of President McKinley. Under his humane and patriotic conduct of the affairs of the nation and his wisdom in dealing with the momentous and difficult questions that have confronted him, the honor and glory of the American flag have been advanced and the United States has become pre-eminent among the nations of the world. This staunch Republican commonwealth will give to him her renewed allegiance and support, not only in the coming convention but in the election next November.

"Massachusetts is proud of the record of her representative in the councils of the administration. She has many times given proof of her confidence in him. No trust, however important, has been imposed upon him which has not been discharged with honor. By his brilliant and successful administration of the affairs of the navy, he has won the gratitude and esteem of the nation. While Massachusetts has never undertaken to pledge or bind her delegates, we doubt not they will give voice to the unanimous sentiment of her people in asking the convention to honor both this commonwealth and the nation by associating with President McKinley upon the national ticket the name of John D. Long."

The resolutions were adopted unanimously.

Rev. A. E. Winship presented as the four delegates to the national convention Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Nahant, Hon. Samuel W. McCall of Winchester, Hon. William B. Plunkett of Adams and Hon. Walter Clifford of New Bedford. They were elected by acclamation.

Hon. William Schofield of Malden presented the names of the following gentlemen for alternates: Colonel George R. Jewett of Salem, Alfred E. Rose of Lowell, Dr. Samuel E. Courtney of Boston, and Henry P. Field of Northampton. They were elected by acclamation.

The convention then listened to a spirited speech by Congressman Dolliver of Iowa, who happened to be in the city and was induced to attend the convention.

Mr. Dolliver spoke for some 15 or 20 minutes, his remarks arousing much enthusiasm, especially his reference to ex-Governor Long as a candidate for Vice President. At the conclusion of his speech the convention adjourned.

SIX CANDIDATES.

Indiana Republicans Ballot Twice for Governor, In Vain.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 26.—The real work of the Republican state convention began today over the nomination of the state ticket and four delegates at large. The first ballot resulted: Durbin, 325½; Griffiths, 313⅓; Hogate, 175; Haggard, 158; Posey, 254½; Dodge, 207½. There are 1,434 delegates, making 718 votes necessary to nominate.

MISS GAMMELL'S ENGAGEMENT.

The relatives of Miss Harriet Gammell in Providence yesterday received letters announcing her engagement to Mr. Thomas Shaw-Safe of England. Miss Gammell is the only unmarried daughter of the late Mrs. William Gammell and inherited from her a large share in her estate, including the residence on the Cliffs in this city. Mr. Shaw-Safe is well-known in England and an explorer of note. He has been a friend of the Gammells for 15 years and was last summer a guest of Miss Gammell at her home in this city.

One of Miss Gammell's sisters married an Englishman, Mr. Arthur Herbert, the marriage taking place in Newport, and another sister is Mrs. E. H. G. Slater. There are two brothers, Messrs. Robert H. I. Gammell and William Gammell, all of whom have Newport cottages.

Miss Gammell is expected to shortly return from Europe, where she has been spending the winter, and will come to her Newport residence to spend the summer. It is expected that the marriage will take place here in the autumn.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF AMERICAN ODD FELLOWSHIP.

Today marks an interesting period in the history of American Odd Fellowship, being the eighty-first anniversary of the introduction of the order into America. It is a day much cherished and revered by Odd Fellows everywhere, and is as a rule very generally observed and celebrated by lodges, encampments and other bodies of the order, by parades, banquets, entertainments of sister lodges, socials and balls; divine services are also attended by the different bodies, when sermons appropriate to the occasion and the principles on which the order is founded are rendered. The celebration in this state this year did not take place today, but has been postponed until May 3 by the joint action of the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment committee, which desired the attendance of Grand Sire Alfred S. Pinkerton, a resident of Worcester, as it is seldom that an opportunity is afforded when the members can have the head of the entire order as their guest, and his engagements today are such as would preclude him from visiting in this jurisdiction.

The celebration will consist of a big parade in Providence, composed of cantons, encampments, lodges and Rebekah lodges, also the grand officers of Massachusetts and Connecticut and other distinguished guests; some of the organizations will introduce special features adapted to themselves, which will add to the unique appearance of the procession. Excelsior Lodge, No. 49, and Aquidneck Encampment, No. 5, of this city will take part in the demonstration, accompanied by the Newport band, leaving by boat at 8:30 a. m. on the morning of that day, and returning by special boat at midnight. The special features of Excelsior Lodge in the procession will be that each member will carry a flag inscribed "Excelsior," an exceedingly appropriate feature, as the name is taken from the motto on the flag of the youth described in Longfellow's poem of that name.

The headquarters of the Newport bodies during their stay in Providence will be in Weybosset hall, 23 Weybosset street, a good point of vantage from which to view the procession.

In the evening there will be a public reception to the grand sire, in the parlors of the Narragansett Hotel, from 7:30 to 8:30, followed by a concert and entertainment in Infantry hall by Reeves American band and the Temple Male Quartet of Boston, to which all members of the order and their families are invited.

Undoubtedly there will be a large representation from this city, not only of the members of the fraternity but also of others who will avail themselves of the opportunity to witness other attractions, being able to return home the same night by the special boat.

HOW AN ARMY IS FED.

Few Persons Realize What a Great Task It Is.

It is very probable that 99 people out of every 100 think of an army as a great aggregation of fighting men, armed to the teeth with rifles, swords and what not, while they never once give a thought to the "men in the rear." Yet these men in the rear are an important part of the fighting machinery. When an army is encamped in a friendly country there is not so great a difficulty in feeding it as when it is penetrating hostile territory and has separated itself from its own country. And yet in each case it is no light task to furnish and distribute the food that is to keep, say, 30,000 stomachs satisfied and 30,000 hearts in the right place. This is the work of the commissary department.

When an army division or an army corps is encamped at home the problem of getting supplies is comparatively simple. Sometimes they are furnished on contract, sometimes bought in large quantities a week or more in advance of the time at which they will be needed. The commissary general is responsible for the procuring of these supplies and having them deposited at a depot within easy reach of the troops.

Each company of a regiment has its cooks; each regiment has its commissary depot, where supplies are kept sufficient for, say, a week or 10 days for all the men. Men are detailed from each company to assist in the work of getting the supplies from the regimental depot to the company kitchens every day. Others are detailed to help transport the supplies to the regimental depots from the general headquarters whenever the stores in the former are getting low. As all supplies are issued from headquarters only on orders and receipts are given for everything secured, it can be seen that there is an immense amount of clerical work necessary to the smooth and uninterrupted work of the department.

There is always a number of men detailed from each regiment to assist in the work of bringing up supplies. The keeping open of a line of communication with the base of supplies is the first thing that a commander must see to, for it means the safety of his army. If this line of communication is but a day's march, the work is simple, and it does not take many men detailed to wagon driving to replenish the impoverished stock of the regimental or division larder. But when the distance is increased to 60 or 100 miles the trick is one of great difficulty.

There are along this line of communication two lines of transport wagons constantly on the move and in opposite directions. The one line is for wagons filled with stores and supplies for the army. The other is made up of empty wagons going back to the base for other loads. Easy stages are made of the journey. For instance, one lot of loaded wagons will start from the base and go an easy distance, when another lot of empty ones will be coming in the opposite direction. The drivers and horses will be exchanged, those on the loaded wagons returning with the empty ones to the base of supplies and those on the empty wagons taking the loaded supplies one stage nearer the army, at the end of which the same thing is repeated.

Within easy reach of the army is established a second base of supplies where a great amount of stores is accumulated in order to enable the army to extend its operations further from its principal base. Of course, a railroad makes the thing doubly sure and quick. But there is usually a good deal of wagon hauling to be done even with the railroads, because it is not often possible for an army to confine its operations to the line of rail communication. In any case, from the nearest base supplies are brought to the division or regimental wagons, which are filled on requisition and receipts are given for the supplies received.

A week's supply or even 10 days' food should be at hand with the army. From the regimental depots the company gets its food for each day, and it is transferred to the company kitchen. Here are great kettles of coffee steaming over the fire, with bacon or other meat cooking in the pans. Thus the food which started as the contents of one of the boxes in the mountain of supplies on the shore finally comes to the plate of the soldier to give him strength.

Sometimes a flying column takes no commissary train with it, cuts itself off from its base of supplies and moves swiftly through the country, taking a few days' rations. This cannot be done unless the country is thoroughly known and can be depended on for food.

Sir George Head, writing of his experience in charge of the commissary in the Peninsular war, says that 3 o'clock every morning found him in the presence of the commanding general, where he was told of the movement of the army for the day. He would then go to his own quarters, where he found scores of representatives of the different parts of the army waiting for information. Sometimes, he says, he was obliged to ride out in the rain and scour the country for wheat to be made into flour for that night's distribution.

The worry of such a position can scarcely be imagined, for even after a supply of wheat was found it had to be transported to mill, ground and carried to a convenient place for distribution among the parts of the army, which operations required the services of many men and teams.

There is considerable red tape required to get provisions, no less than 75 different kinds of blanks being supplied to be used as requisitions.—Detroit Free Press.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

The weavers of the Lorraine mills in Pawtucket, at a general meeting last night, unanimously voted to reject the proposition for settlement which was offered to their executive committee by Treasurer James R. MacColl. This proposition was that the weavers return to work and operate 15 sets of looms, six in the cotton and nine in the worsted departments, under the four-loom system, the looms to be operated for one year, in order to demonstrate the truth or error of Mr. MacColl's contention that it is impossible to make $1.50 to $2 a week more in this way than with the three-loom system in use previous to the strike. About 200 were present at the meeting of the weavers and not a single voice was raised in favor of accepting the proposition.

Half of the 80 print cloth weavers employed at the Crompton company's mill quit work yesterday afternoon to assist the striking velvet weavers in enforcing their demands for an increase in wages and the redress of alleged grievances. This sympathetic strike adds nearly 300 to the number of idle looms in Crompton. This strike follows the refusal of a second demand by the velvet weavers for a satisfactory settlement. The mill officers claim to be filling the places of the strikers with new hands and deserters from the strikers' ranks. Seven hundred of the 1,100 looms in the mill are now stopped and about 110 weavers out.

Harry Vardon, the English golf player will play a 36 hole exhibition match on the Rumford links of the Wannamoisett Golf Club of Providence Thursday of next week, 18 holes in the morning and 18 in the afternoon. As he sails for England May 5, two days later, this will be his last play in this country this spring.

The North Kingstown town council yesterday granted the Sea View railway privilege to cross the town's highways at seven points between Wickford and East Greenwich, the dual crossing at Sand Hill on Post road being given up; the railroad to keep the crossings in repair and to hold the town free from any damage that may occur at or on any highway crossing.

TO ENCIRCLE ROUMANIA.

Projected Railroad Which Will Exceed 1,000 Miles in Length.

NEW YORK, April 26.—One of the most important railroad equipment deals ever consummated in this country is now nearing completion, says the Journal of Commerce. R. Rabinlesec, engineer-in-chief of the Roumanian state railways, is now in this country for the purpose of studying the capacity of American steel and bridge concerns with a view to their producing material for a projected railroad which will encircle the borders of Roumania. He is compiling figures so that his government may appropriate a sum sufficient to defray all expenses relating to the building and equipping the road. It is thought that $20,000,000 will about cover the expenditure for the new road, which will be over 1,000 miles in length. If this project goes through fully $6,000,000 will be spent in equipment, and local parties are assured that this sum will find its way to American manufacturers for the purchase of rails, locomotives, cars, etc.

DEMANDS PROMPT PAYMENT.

Note Based Upon Instructions from Washington Presented to the Porte.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 25.—The negotiations between the United States and the Porte regarding the American indemnity claims have again been transferred here. United States Charge d'Affaires Griscom yesterday handed to Tewfik Pasha minister of foreign affairs, a note based upon instructions he had received from Washington, the tenor of which has not yet been made public. It is understood, however, that it demands prompt payment of the indemnity. The note will be discussed at the council of ministers today. Similar steps by the other powers are regarded as imminent. Charge Griscom, in the present circumstances, declines to express his views.

TO THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS

Delegates Chosen to Represent the American Railway Association.

CHICAGO, April 26.—The American Railway Association before adjourning last night elected the following delegates to the international railway congress to be held in Paris in September: L. F. Loree, general manager of the Pennsylvania road; W. F. Allen, secretary of the American Railway Association; J. Kruttschnitt, fourth vice president of the Wabash system; C. B. Buchholz, chief engineer of the Erie lines; S. F. Crapo, general manager of the Flint & Pere Marquette. It was decided to hold the next meeting in Boston October 24.

The only issue at present, however, is the execution of the Porte's repeated promises to Minister Straus to pay the indemnity. After Mr. Straus left the matter remained in abeyance until the Associated Press despatch from Washington, April 17, sharply reminded the Turkish government that the question required urgent attention. The Porte immediately telegraphed to the Turkish minister at Washington, asking for explanations of the reported strained relations. The minister replied that he had called at the State Department and was informed that the situation had not yet assumed a serious character. The words "not yet" seem to have impressed the Porte, and on the strength of this information the sultan issued an irade in regard to the Kurpoot matter, which he hoped would serve as a sop and defer pressure in the demands for indemnity, although it is generally recognized that permission to rebuild will be of little value to the missionaries without the payment of the indemnity.

Another irade, issued April 25, orders Rear Admiral Ahmed Pasha to proceed to America in order to study the construction of battleships.

THE COMING CAMPAIGN.

Program Arranged For the Big Conventions.

Wolcott and Lodge Will Open the Ball at Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The fact that there is little or no opposition to the programmes provided for the different national conventions makes it quite easy for the managers long in advance to arrange for the presiding officers and speeches which are to be made. It is well understood that the conventions are to be devoted largely to oratorical efforts in order to set the pace for the campaign succeeding. The Republicans have their programme pretty well arranged. It is well understood now that Senator Wolcott of Colorado will be the temporary chairman and that Senator Lodge of Massachusetts will be the permanent chairman. This will insure as a beginning two excellent addresses, as the men selected are among the best orators in the senate and, in fact, stand at the head of able speakers in the country. Senator Wolcott, beyond all question, is one of the most pleasing talkers in the senate, and Senator Lodge has a fine delivery and chooses his words and sentences with the judgment of a born orator. There is also likely to be a speech from Senator Depew either in nominating or seconding the nomination of President McKinley. There has been some suggestion that Senator Beveridge of Indiana will also make a speech, but that has not yet been definitely determined. As McKinley was nominated four years ago by Senator Foraker, it is not likely that the Ohio senator will make the nominating speech this year.

In the Populist Convention.

The Populists have also been arranging for their convention, which occurs at Sioux Falls, S. D., May 15. Speeches will be made by two and perhaps three senators. Chairman Butler will call the convention to order and deliver a speech, and the man he names for the temporary chairman will also make an address. There has been a suggestion that this should be either Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota or Senator Harris of Kansas. By the way, only four years ago Pettigrew attended the Republican national convention as a delegate from South Dakota and a month or two later attended the Populist convention, not as a delegate, but as an onlooker. I remember that the South Dakota delegation paraded the Populist convention with a banner inscribed "South Dakota is the only state with two Populist United States senators." It is doubtful, owing to the fact that Senator Kyle has acted with the Republican party since, that the same claim will now be made. Senator Allen of Nebraska is very likely to place Bryan in nomination at the Populist convention. It will be observed that in both the Populist and the Republican conventions at least there will be a number of senatorial orators.

In the Democratic Convention.

Although it has not been definitely decided, there is a possibility that senators will also be heard in the Democratic convention, and possibly one will be selected for either the temporary or permanent chairman. Among those who possess ability for such places and who are recognized good talkers are Culberson of Texas, Daniel of Virginia and Tillman of South Carolina, and, of course, a speech will be made by Jones of Arkansas, in calling the convention to order, and possibly in the nominating speeches some other senators will be heard. Very few members of the house have been selected for any of the conventions, as most of these representatives are candidates for re-election either on the Republican or Democratic tickets in their respective congressional districts, and in order to avoid competition with other prominent men they usually refrain from being selected as delegates. There is some suggestion that Champ Clark of Missouri will be sent to the convention at Kansas City, as he is a picturesque talker and could make a good speech in seconding the nomination of Bryan.

Mr. Ball's Headgear.

Representative Ball is one of the men from Texas and, in fact, one of the few men from the south who wear silk hats. He is seen nearly every day in the shining headgear and also with a dressy frock coat. The frock coat is not incompatible with the south, because many of the senators and representatives from that section wear this garment. But the headpiece of the average southern congressman is a soft, black hat, with a broad brim, commonly called the "slouch" hat. "How do you make that silk hat go with your constituents?" I asked Mr. Ball. "Oh, that's all right," he replied. "I wear this headpiece in Texas just as I do here and get along all right. It was not a great while ago that I had been up to Houston and afterward went into one of the rural districts, 30 or 40 miles from the railroad. I wore my silk hat just as I do here, and in reply to a question from one of my constituents I told him that I had been brought up to wear my best clothes when I went to visit people and that I did not want to wear any better clothes in Houston than I did when I came out to see the farmers of my district. That is the way I felt about it, and they understand it, so you see the silk hat goes in Texas in spite of some of the reports that we hear on the subject."

For years I have been troubled with inflammation of the kidneys and bladder. Some times it was exceedingly painful. I was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but they seemed to afford me but temporary relief at the most. A friend suggested Bright's Kidney Beans, and like a drowning man grasping after straws, tried one box and the result was most gratifying. I now use them whenever occasion requires. I consider them a very valuable remedy.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, April 26, Wall Street—The stock market opened firm, with American Steel & Wire at 41⅛, Atchison preferred 70, Burlington 126, Continental Tobacco 30, Federal Steel 42⅜, Leather 11, Leather preferred 71, Louisville 82½, Missouri Pacific 57⅛, Brooklyn Transit 74¾, Northern Pacific 58½, Sugar 112, St. Paul 119⅞, Southern preferred 58, Tobacco 103½, Union Pacific 56⅝, and Union Pacific preferred 75⅞.

10—Prices were generally higher at the opening in sympathy with London. Changes were small and the market was very active. Sugar created a small sensation by opening at an unchanged quotation on a small transaction. It then ran off a half and rallied a point.

11—The apathetic movement in Sugar left the market without an effective prop and prices sold off steadily. A level was reached below yesterday's close and there was pronounced weakness in the Tractions. Realizing and bear selling combined to drop Sugar two points, or ⅝ below yesterday's final figure, but it rallied 1⅝ and the market hardened in sympathy.

Noon—Money on call, easier at 2 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 4 @ 5 per cent; sterling exchange, unsteady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.88 @ ¼ for demand and $4.84¼ for 60 days; posted rates, $4.85 @ ½ and $4.89 @ ½; commercial bills, $4.83½ @ $4.84; silver certificates, 59¾ @ 60½; bar silver, 59¾; Mexican dollars, 47⅝; government bonds, steady. Purchases of the Wabash issues were on an enormous scale and advanced them to 8⅝ and 23¾ respectively. Some effect was produced on the general list by these developments, but upward progress was soon impeded by heavy selling of Sugar. At midday the market was hesitating and semi-stagnant. Bonds were quiet and steady.

May prove the best investment you ever made.

Mr. W. H. Mack, managing director of the Copper King of Arizona, is living at the mines; he has the largest force of men on the pay roll that has ever been employed there; he says that the outlook for the stockholders was never so good as at present and that the great value of the properties has never yet been comprehended by the company or the public; that in a few weeks' time the developments will show one of the greatest mines in the world. The highest assays so far made show 760 ounces of silver and 25 per cent copper per ton, worth $500. In view of the fact that this great mine may soon prove a second Comstock lode—only a limited amount of shares will now be sold at 25 cents each and within the next 60 days the price of the stock will be advanced to 50 cents per share. If you want any of this stock at 25c. you had better secure it within the next 30 days for the company reserves the right to advance the price without further notice. J. D. "BURNS" BY BULLETS.

A curious case of possible burn from a bullet was shown in a wound received by a corporal in the Queen's regiment. The bullet (possibly a spent one) had struck the shaft of the tibia close to the crest transversely, and apparently had drilled the bone. There was a little irregularity of the bone, and a fragment may have been displaced. Close to the exit wound was a mark resembling a burn the extent and shape of a bullet. The patient's account was that he had felt himself hit and felt something burning his eg. On removing the puttie the bullet was found lying underneath it. The man stated that it was "red hot," a perhaps pardonable exaggeration. The bullet, at any rate, was too hot to hold in the hand without pain. The bullet was not a ricochet in appearance. Another patient gave a somewhat similar account. In this instance the bullet entered one inch to the right side of the eighth dorsal spine, and made its exit three inches below the clavicle on the same side, without traversing the thoracic cavity. The bullet dropped inside the shirt and burned the skin. The bullet was found inside the clothes a day or two later. Such accounts have to be received with a certain amount of caution, but undoubtedly the mark on the skin of the abdomen did resemble a burn.

It is often supposed popularly that the temperature of bullets is greatly raised by the friction of the air. The supposition does not seem to rest on an experimental basis. Arrest of movement would develop heat, of course, but the prodigious range of the small-bore bullet shows that the friction is exceedingly slight. Markers at rifle butts are familiar with the fact that ricochet shots (which are recognized by the peculiar hum they make in passing through the air, and which often fall dead by the shelters or drop back off the target), if picked up at once are warm, or even hot; but in such cases the movement has been violently arrested. It is possible that some heat might be developed by the arrest of the bullet by the clothing, but in such a case the missile cannot have been traveling with any great velocity.

A ricochet shot loses the spin in its longitudinal axis that it acquires in passing through the rifled barrel, but as it glances off after the impact it may revolve on a transverse axis, turning over and over in its flight. It is, therefore, unlikely to make the small wounds of entrance and exit characteristic of the perfect small-bore bullet. Moreover, the nickel sheath of the bullet will probably split up as the bullet strikes the earth and bounds up or glances from it. It is occasionally stated that the cicatricial cord resulting from the passage of a small-bore bullet through soft tissues is due to the cauterizing action of the bullet. Such a view is hardly to be taken seriously. The cicatrix resembles no doubt that which might be caused by passing a thick galvanic wire through the tissues, and then raising it to a temperature sufficient to burn the tissues. But the cicatrix of a bullet wound is not produced in that way. The velocity with which it passes through the tissues is too great to allow time for any cauterizing action, even if the bullet were at white heat.—[Correspondence of British Medical Journal.

A HOME WEDDING.

Miss Dorcas Rogers Coggeshall, daughter of Mrs. George Champlin, and Mr. James Irving Shepley, son of Alderman William Shepley, were married last evening at the residence of the bride's mother on Third street in the presence of relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Brower G. Boardman, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The bride wore a gown of pearl gray and was accompanied by Miss Annie Ray Shepley, the groom's sister, who wore a gown of pink. The groom was attended by Mr. Freeborn S. Coggeshall, the bride's brother. Mrs. Benjamin B. Coggeshall, the bride's sister-in-law, rendered the wedding march. Following the ceremony there was a reception and a collation. Mr. and Mrs. Shepley will make their home at 19 Channing street.

PARIS EXPOSITION NOT EQUAL TO THE "WHITE CITY."

As a whole, the Paris exposition could not be planned so as to present such a splendid coup-d'oeil as did the Court of Honor at Chicago. Our World's Fair had the advantage of unlimited space, with the opportunity of spreading in all directions. As Paris wished to have her exposition within her own walls, she was obliged to take the largest open spaces which the city afforded and to connect them as best she could. The broad waterways of the "White City" suggested the possibility of using the banks of the Seine far more than they have ever been used before. The quays have been widened and in places raised to the level of the avenues which border them; hence the river may be called the main thoroughfare of the exposition. Otherwise the space is the same as that occupied by the exposition of 1889, with the added area embraced between the old Palais de l'Industrie, now removed, and the Place de la Concorde. On this piece of land the two great art palaces and the monumental entrances have been erected facing the very centre of the city.—[Ernest C. Peixotto, in the May Scribner's.

Frank W. Hackett, who succeeds Governor Allen as assistant secretary of the navy, was formally inducted into office yesterday. The oath was administered by Chief Clerk Peters.

SUICIDE BY SHOOTING.

Captain Nathan M. Russell Takes His Own Life with a Revolver.

Captain Nathan N. Russell of this city committed suicide Wednesday afternoon by shooting. He had not been in good health for some time, a cancer on his left arm causing him much trouble. An operation was suggested to save his life, but he resolutely refused to sacrifice his arm, saying he would carry his arm to his grave. Yesterday about 5:30 o'clock he sent the housekeeper upstairs for a blanket, and in her absence took the 38 calibre revolver he used as a captain, and placing it to his temple fired. When the housekeeper reached him he showed signs of life, but quickly passed away.

The deceased was born in this city nearly 73 years ago, being the son of Captain Charles Russell, also a sea captain. He went to sea young and for some years was engaged in the West Indian trade, in which Newport had many vessels employed, doing very well financially. Later he was captain of a Mississippi steamer and then came to the Morgan line, where he was employed until February, 1876, when he was engaged as captain of the Eolus of the Wickford line, a position he held until May, 1880. Later he was superintendent of the Greenport line of steamers to this city. He was for a time at the Sailors' Snug Harbor on Staten Island, and then came to this city, residing with his sister, the late Mrs. Albro, at 28 Pope street. On her death he engaged a housekeeper and continued to live in the same place, finally dying there. Another sister, Mrs. Rebecca B. Burdick, resides in the next house.

Captain Russell was twice married, but leaves no children. He was one of the few remaining members of the Newport Marine Society and was a good sea captain, of the E.C.F. hearty old type. He was the last ex-captain of the Wickford line, his successors, Captains Allen and Wightman, having died in the service.

AT THE STONE QUARRY.

Both stone crushers are now in operation at Brown & Howard's quarry, and the demand for crushed stone for the streets, the new sidewalks and other purposes is so great that all that is crushed is promptly carted away. Four wagons are kept busy hauling rock from the quarry close by, and the crushers grind it as fast as it is delivered.

It promises to be some time yet before the city's crusher is ready for work. The old crusher is partly set up and the foundation for the new one is in, but considerable work remains to be done before a stone can be crushed. In the meantime the ledge men are getting out a great quantity of stone ready for the crusher when it begins business.

FIRE IN THE J. DEFOREST DANIELSON HOUSE IN BOSTON.

A Boston despatch says: Fire in the residence of J. DeForest Danielson on Commonwealth avenue here this morning badly damaged the interior of the building, causing a loss of $15,000. The fire originated in the basement, from a defective stove pipe. With the exception of one servant, all the occupants were asleep, but were aroused and escaped without injury. A large quantity of costly bric-a brac, furniture and laces was badly damaged by water.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The funeral of Louisa, wife of Stephen P. Durfee and daughter of Israel B. and Laura Orswell, was held at the Friends' meeting house Wednesday at 1 p. m. Before leaving South Somerset, Frank E. Jones, the Friend minister at that place, offered prayer and began the services in Portsmouth by reading an appropriate Scripture lesson. Rev. Henry W. McCrone offered prayer and a quartet, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Ayler, Mr. Elwood G. Macomber and Mrs. Richard R. Macomber, sang two selections, the first one being "Saved by Grace." Mr. Jones made an address and Rev. Mr. Hoffman offered the closing prayer. The bearers were Messrs. Cheney Orswell, William Thomas, Atwell Hedly, brother and brothers-in-law, and Mr. Chaplin. The burial took place in the Union cemetery.

Mrs. Durfee was a native of this town and spent most of her life here, having removed to South Somerset with her family only a few months ago. She was ill with consumption before she went and the change of climate did not benefit her. She leaves a husband and five children, besides stepchildren, the youngest child being but a few months old. She gave the babe to her sister, Mrs. Atwell Hedley, and the next older to her aunt, Mrs. Carrie DeBlois of Swansea. A number of people from out of town were present at the funeral, among them being Charles E. Dore and family and Mrs. Frank Sisson of Fall River.

Mr. Willard S. Brayton has been quite sick, but has nearly regained his usual health.

Miss Julia Coggeshall is guest of her aunt, Mrs. Francis J. Coggeshall of Middletown.

Mrs. William J. Elliott is in Newport, helping care for her mother, Mrs. J. H. Jordan, who is very ill.

Mr. Willard of Providence has been guest of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Chase.

Mr. Emerson Dennis of Providence is guest of his sister, Mrs. Herbert Chase.

The changes in the location of the switches of the Newport & Fall River electric railway will be from opposite the Sherman land to John B. Cornell's, at the brow of Quaker hill, and from the car barn to the head of Park avenue or Stone Bridge road. The purpose of these changes is to equalize the distance between the switches with the expectation of making better time and having shorter waits.

The four members of the Alaskan party left town Wednesday morning, stopping on a matter of business in Newtown village. Mr. Herman Rounds is a Westport, Mass., man, his father from that town being present at the reception Tuesday evening; the other three are well known citizens of Portsmouth.

Mr. Isaac S. Cole has an office in Boston, where he spends the week in the interests of the mining company of which he is treasurer, returning Saturday to spend Sunday with his family at his home on Childs street.

MIDDLETOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Measles are quite prevalent in town, there being two or three cases in some families.

Mrs. Eugene Sturtevant of Providence has arrived at the Cram cottage, near the Second beach. Bishop Clark, her father, is expected May 1.

Changes in the location of the switches on the Island road in this town are from Pierce's to Forest avenue, and from Anthony's to the Portsmouth line.

CAPTAIN CHADWICK ASKED TO EXPLAIN.

A Washington despatch says: "It was said at the Navy Department yesterday that Captain French E. Chadwick, U. S. N., who commanded the New York in the Santiago campaign, has been asked by the Navy Department for an explanation of his recent statement to the Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle, that Admiral Schley had disgraced the navy. This report has not been officially confirmed, but is generally believed. If it should prove to be true, a court-martial may follow, in which the whole truth of the Sampson-Schley controversy may be brought to the surface. Such a grave criticism as that of Captain Chadwick of his superior officer can hardly be allowed to pass by the Navy Department, unless a good explanation is offered. This incident has caused much interest in naval circles."

LAYING NEW SIDEWALKS.

The work of laying the granolithic sidewalk on the east side of Thames street, between Touro and Church streets, was pushed last night by two gangs, to clear the street, and despite the absence of light good progress was made. This morning when business men came down town they found the walk laid almost to Church street. Some of the men worked until nearly midnight, and others worked until morning, and today the last piece north of Church street was laid.

The gangs which have been working on Spring street have been put on Thames street, where it is desired to have the sidewalks constructed as rapidly as possible. On the east side of the street openings have been made between Church and Pelham streets and the sidewalk men are completing the work of laying the granolithic top dressing at several places. The city men are today excavating at several places on the west side, between Mill and Church streets. On Spring street the entire stretch from Pelham street to Broadway has been excavated and filled in, ready for the top dressing; the east side, south to Prospect Hill street, has been completed, and sidewalks have been laid on the west side north from Prospect Hill street to Pelham.

The city workmen are also engaged in preparing the north side of Mill street, above Spring street, for new sidewalks.

HEALTH OF HAVANA.

In the course of a single year the United States has been able to demonstrate what had not been learned in 400 years of Spanish rule—namely, that Havana is not necessarily an unhealthy city. The Spanish seem to be almost destitute of knowledge of sanitation. Havana is favorably situated for health, its elevation and contour are favorable to good drainage and there is an excellent water supply. Yet there is no sewerage system, and the distribution of the water supply is defective. Large sums of money, derived from revenue receipts, have been applied to the renovation of the city. This was in itself an enormous task, but the result is shown in the remarkable decrease of the death rate, especially in relation to contagious and infectious diseases. The death rate is now substantially that of the normal point of large cities in the United States. The mortality from yellow fever has not been so low in the history of a century.—[Brigadier General Ludlow, in Independent.
